VHEN does Admiral Courser intend to withdraw the ridiculous order including lead amongst contraband of war? Looked at from a purely technical point of view lead is un doubtedly contraband; looked at from common sense point of view no goods could be of a less warlike nature than lead when imported into China. Its almost sole purpose is to serve as lining for tea chests. The scarcity of lead at some of the ports is becoming really a serious matter. 'Our Tamsui correspondent says that in North Formosa there is not enough for requirements, and at Amoy we hear the situation is the same. We 3528 have no specific information as to Footbow, Shanghai, and-Hankow, but it is hardly probable that these ports would have such a large stock on band as to carry them through a season without further importations. The French Government has repeatedly declared 3976 its intention to interfere with foreign trade as little as possible in its operations against. The enemy was represented by dummies posted as these a battery of artillery and a column of incampaigning; the "five" was a misprint for fautry whose retreat the skirmishers were covering. Firing opened upon the skirmishers, each gun firing two rounds of shrapnel at them at a distance of about 800 or 900 yards. > Major General Cameron, previous to the men leaving, said it afforded him great pleasure to in those manœuvres. As he had had to with about 70,000 volunteers at home in the Northern District, he knew something about them. He never before trusted Volunteers in work of this somewhat dungerous character in conjunction with the regulars, however, but h had been given to understand that the Volunteers in this colony had been brought into a very creditable state of efficiency, and so he trusted them to take part in work of this kind. The proof of the pudding was in the eating, and he thought this fact said more for the Volunteers than any amount of flattering things he might say. He was glad to see work their small guns so well. A good deal, as they would see, was to be learned by these drills here had been mistakes made in the ranges, and they would probably all have been killed be fore they got the enemy's range, but of course these were things they had to tearn. were many places which afforded good opportunities for dummy practice, such as hoped soon to see the Volunteers at large gun practice, for that was their province. After some further remarks, which we were unable to catch on account of the wind the Volunteers marched off to the launch, and the Buff's completed the expenditure of their ammunition.

Previous to the Volunteers being dismissed at Headquarters, Capt. Francis addressed the men on behalf of Major Tripp, who was not then present. He thanked those who had mustered for their attendance, and regretted that there had not been a larger number. As Major General Comeron had said, there was much to learn, and though they appeared to be very efficient as far as the drill went, they had yet to learn a goo deal with regard to the real work of firing He was glad to say that the work they had done that afternoon was very good.

Their dress differs from that of the people of the llowing jucket, the whole of blue cotton. Like the Chinese the men wear the queue, but not so long, dispensing with the milk with which Chinaman usually supplements his hair, and instead of allowing the queue to hang down their back other wind it round the head. I do not think they looked favourably on the coming of the Franch: they ran off to the hills, and not withstanding all the advances made to them they did not readily return. Like the Touquinese, they are Bullhists, but their Buddhism is less infear of the devil, and it is not uncommon to find outside their houses alters consecrated to him, probably to induce his Satanic Majesty to give them peace.

SIR ROBERT HART AND THE BRITISH LEGATION.

.The Peking correspondent of the N. C. Daily News writes on the 3rd May as follows The reports which have been current as to the probable appointment of Sir Robert Hart to the post of British Minister in Peking have been too persistent not to have some foundation. It all the loopholes were horizontal, from which English diplomatic service but the selection of Sir Robert Hart has so very much to recommend it that the exceptional course would be more than justified. It is said that the delay in accepting the offer is due to Sir Robert's negotiations with the Tsung-li Yamen respecting his over their heads. This fact explains the successor. That he has been carefully preparing his younger brither for this, for years past, has of course, been obvious to us all, and if the Inspector General were to retire from treuched camp of Dong-sang. My argument the service there would be no particular is supported by a reference to the losses systemed objection to the founding of a Hart dynasty by the Turcos on the 12th, when May were fir the Custome Service, while if the future efficient as the head of the family China would cooped up in forts, but man fring from the pertainly not be the loser. Ferry to appeal against the transportation of habitual oriminals to New Caledonia. M. Ferry replied that it would be difficult to avoid sending some few recidivistes to New Caledonia, but the French Government did not intend that it should be the principal place of transportation. On the contrary, the number of criminals sent there would be small, and selected from classes not likely to be dangerous, and they would be under strict control.
